Dr. RUSSELL's
Infallible Solvent, for the Stone & Gravel,

AND

STEDMAN'S
PILE DROPS.

WHEN the late Mr. Richard Stedman, of Godalming, in the county of Surry, proprietor of the above inestimable Medicines, first offered them to the Public; pecuniary considerations were the least which actuated him.

In a very extensive, though private circle, he had for many years witnessed the happy effects they produced; and it was by the earnest solicitations of particular friends, and persons who had experienced their salutary power, as well by the full conviction he felt of the benefit he would thereby confer on Society, that he at length consented to brave every opposition, and become the Preparer and Vender of these Medicines.

For the accommodation of the Public, a Warehouse was opened for the sale of them by his Son, at No. 24, Crooked-lane, near Fish-street-hill; but his Father's decease, rendering his presence necessary to superintend the business in the country, he has relinquished the above concern; and the proprietorship devolving to the Children of the deceased, they have appointed Mess. HOWARD and EVANS, 42, Long-Lane, West-Smithfield, their Wholesale Agents in London.

The Proprietors beg leave to remark, that no rash or indiscriminate eulogiums have ever been offered on these Medicines, nor have the columns of newspapers been crowded with arguments in support of their Virtues—their efficacy has been tried, and they can conscientiously assert, that in no fair trial, they have ever known them to fail.

These Medicines were never offered as nostrums, adapted for the cure of every disorder incident to the human frame, but solely for the cure of the specific Disorders here enumerated; and as they are destined for particular not general purposes, if in those Disorders for which they are offered they have invariably succeeded, they must be calculated to produce the desired effect.

N. B. The Solvent for the cure of the Stone and Gravel, is not Genuine, unless it is in moulded Bottles, with the Words, Dr. Russell's infallible Drops, prepared by R. Stedman; and none of the Pile Drops are Genuine, unless in Bottles of the same Description, with the Words, Pile Drops, prepared only by R. Stedman, Godalming; and each Bottle is inclosed in a printed bill of Directions, signed by

Rd. STEDMAN, One of the Proprietors.

These Medicines are prepared and sold by R. STEDMAN, of GODALMING, in the County of Surry, in Bottles at 3s. 6d. and 6s. 6d. each, Duty included.—Sold also by Mess. HOWARD and EVANS, 42, Long-lane, West-smithfield, sole Agents in London; and retail by most Medicine Venders in the Kingdom.

DR. WAITE'S Celebrated Worm Medicine,

In the Form of GINGERBREAD NUTS, prepared and sold wholesale and retail, by HOWARD and EVANS, No. 42, Long Lane, West Smithfield, London; in Packets, at 1s. 1½d. each, Duty included.

THIS excellent Medicine has been many years tried and approved of and has acquired a reputation far surpassing that of any other Medicine, which is partly evinced by the astonishing rapidity of its sale, upwards of Sixty Thousand persons having experienced its happy effects, since it was first discovered by the late Dr. Waite.

This vast demand has not only been occasioned by their unparalleled efficacy in the total extirpation of those horrid vermin called worms, and their cause, from the human body, at all ages; but also in Nervous and Bilious Cases, and all disorders of the Head, occasioned by foulness of the Stomach, and Obstructions in the minute Vessels; in Complaints occasioned by Indigestion, and giving almost instantaneous Relief in the most racking Pains of the Choleric. It proving likewise to be the best Physic ever known, in all cases where Purging is necessary, as after Hard Drinking, the Measles, Small Pox, &c. has not a little added to its celebrity.

The following Cases will be sufficient to give the reader an idea of their superlative efficacy, and reconcile their belief to the astonishing demand occasioned by their popularity.

Mr. GEORGE SPURRIER, Shoemaker, of Temple Street, has waited on Mr. ROSE, Vender of Dr. Waite's Worm Medicine, requesting him to publish the following CASE:

HELENA, wife of the undersigned George Spurrier, Shoemaker, of Temple-street, in the parish of Temple, in the city of Bristol, having for several years suffered under a violent oppression on her stomach, attended with loss of appetite, a hacking cough; and considerable debility, was recommended by a gentleman who had often experienced great relief from Dr. Waite's Worm Nuts, to try the same. On trial of the Nuts, she voided a very large quantity of Worms, much resembling white maggots; in consequence, the complaint of her stomach and the cough were removed, and she was restored to her wonted strength.—The first time she took Dr. Waite's Worm Medicine was about four years ago, and the disorder having returned, at different periods, three or four times since, she had, at those times, again resource to the Nuts, and every time experienced the same happy effects, which I deem it my duty to make public for the good of the community, and will gladly satisfy any further enquiry.

(Signed)

GEORGE SPURRIER, Bristol.

To MESSRS. HOWARD AND EVANS.

Gentlemen, An instance of the extraordinary virtues of Dr. Waite's celebrated Worm Medicine in the Form of Gingerbread Nuts, being voluntarily communicated to me, I think it highly expedient to acquaint you, that it may universally be made known, for the benefit of other individuals suffering under similar complaints: A young woman residing in this town, who had been confined to her bed for these last five years, by a disorder in her stomach, attended with a continual sickness, having tried every medical assistance in vain, and despairing of her recovery, hearing of the above justly celebrated Medicine, requested a friend to purchase a packet at my shop, which she took according to the printed directions, and derived considerable relief from it, by persevering in taking another, she is, to the surprize of all her acquaintance relieved from every complaint, and enabled to pursue her former employment. Several respectable people, her neighbours, have also spoken of it with astonishment, as they have often seen her in her former deplorable state of health.

I am, Gentlemen,

Your humble servant.

BENJAMIN BRAY.

Chemist and Druggist Sunderland.

P.S. Not wishing her name to be made public, upon application to me, every reference will be given.
